RAIL STRIKE NEAR END

"GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT" IS REACHED

Roads To Give Definite Answer Tuesday; All Hopeful

TO END IN WEEK

Is Belief; Employment of Non-Union Labor Slowed Up

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. — The understanding which was reached last night between the committee of railway executives and representatives of the railway brotherhood for settlement of the shopmen's strike will quickly be translated into a definite settlement ending the strike upon the basis of a "gentlemen's agreement" it was believed here today.

Executives representing the 148 railroads of the United States will meet here early next week, probably Tuesday to give their answer to the proposition submitted by the brotherhoods in behalf of the striking shopcraftsmen.

"The gentlemen's agreement" will restore the seniority rights of the strikers without saying so in plain words. This is expected to reconcile the "die hards" among the railway presidents who avowed they would never give in upon the seniority issue. It is expected that the coal strike will be ended in all fields by the time the shopmen are back at work and the heavy movement of coal along with the transportation of the gigantic crops will furnish enough work to keep the shopmen busy, including those who were taken on during the strike and strikers who were taken back to their old places.

After two days' discussion in the board room of the Association of Railway Executives at 61 Broadway, it was decided that President T. DeWitt Cuyler, of the Association should call a meeting of the 148 members of the association to lay before them a concrete peace proposition which is known to be acceptable to all the railway unions.

Union leaders regarded the summoning of the railway executives as a most hopeful sign and it is believed that the strike will have ended and all men will be at work by one week from today.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19. — So certain were Cleveland transportation officials today that the nation-wide strike of federated shopcrafts would end within a few hours, or some basis of settlement be agreed upon that orders were issued to service corporations and employment agencies to "ease up" on the employment of non-union labor. It is believed the action is based upon private advices from the New York joint conference of executives and union leaders.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. — What amounted to almost complete conviction prevailed generally in administration quarters today that President Harding will never have to invoke the powers of chastisement mentioned in his message.

Private advices received by cabinet officers and by senators in close touch with both sides in New York were to the effect that a basis of adjustment had been found, that agreement has been reached in the main, and that next week will witness the working out and agreement upon details.

Steel Company Regains Charter

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19—Authority to do business in Ohio has again been granted to the Pittsburgh Tin Plate & Steel corporation of Delaware, operating a plant at Marietta.

Acting upon instructions from Governor Davis, State Finance Director Davis requested Secretary of State Smith to revoke his recent order canceling the corporation's charter authorizing it to do business in Ohio. Secretary Smith promptly complied with the request.

The corporation's charter was cancelled a few days ago because of alleged non-payment of taxes.

WOMAN FIGURES IN DYNAMITE CASE

One of the most startling murders of recent years was the killing of John Everhart, of Sullivan, Ind., who was blown to pieces when he touched the self-starter of his automobile, to which a dynamite bomb had been attached. Elmer Hale is accused of setting the bomb. His wife, Mrs. Mabel Hale, has admitted she was in love with Everhart, tho the latter was engaged to marry Helen Dugger, of whom Mrs. ale was insanely jealous.

MAYOR PERMITS SALE OF REAL BEER; BUGS IN THE CITY'S WATER

No Home-Made Stuff, He Rules; Federal Gov't Investigates

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—Federal prohibition agents were ordered today to Johnstown, Penna., to check up on violations of the Volstead law as a result of the edict of Mayor Cauffel of that city, permitting the manufacture and sale of real beer.

Assistant Prohibition Commissioner James E. Jones, declared Cauffel had made himself liable for removal from office by Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania "for permitting a violation of the Volstead act."

JOHNSTOWN, Penna., Aug. 19 — Every eye or most of them in this city was today turned in the direction of the saloons which Volstead's law has not put out of business by starvation. Mayor Joseph Cauffel, having drawn a few bugs and worms out of the faucet at his home has issued an edict that the city's water is dangerous to the lives of the inhabitants and as a remedy he has officially announced that all the saloons can go as far as they like selling beer. The only

SCHOOL SUPTS CLAIM VICTORY—DOCS DENY IT, ISSUE CHALLENGE

H. B. Pigman and J. C. Wright, county school supervisors, claim to have showed up their opponents, Doctors Crisswell and Honabarger, as a pair of quack horseshoe tossers, when they won the first two games of the match yesterday evening.

But the physicians pormptly took exception to the claim. Rain interrupted the match at the beginning of the third game, and the docs assert they were just getting in good form at that time.

At any rate, it was decided to hold another match soon to decide the winners.

SEVERAL WILL ATTEND DEM. RALLY TUES.

Joseph Haverick, of the county Democratic executive committee, was rounding up delegates Saturday to the state Democratic convention to be held next Tuesday in the Grand Theatre, Columbus.

All candidates for county offices and the chairman and secretary of the executive committee are delegates.

Several yesterday expressed the intention of going. The conventions are called to prepare a platform for the campaigns for the regular election next November.

COAL SHIPPED ON BOTH ROADS

Wagons Line Up At W. & L. E. And Pennsy To Unload Coal

That Coshocton-co miners have started to work with a vengeance was evidenced by the sight of between 10 and 15 wagons and trucks loaded with coal, lined up on Hickory and Main-st Saturday morning awaiting their turn to be unloaded into freight cars standing on the Hickory-st siding.

The agreement allowing the miners to resume work was signed Tuesday evening. Work of cleaning up the idle mines was started in many cases the next morning, and by Thursday actual production had been started.

The greater part of the coal being loaded at Hickory-st Saturday morning was from the wagon mines in the Roscoe vicinity. Coal was also being loaded into cars standing on the Wheeling track at East Orange-st Saturday.

HOPE TO PASS TARIFF BILL THIS EVENING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Administration leaders today launched a move to pass the McCumber tariff bill tonight. They hoped to get an agreement with the Democrats to vote some time before midnight and then to recess until Monday.

The unanimous consent agreement under which the senate is operating provides for a final vote on the bill tomorrow.

The first and final account of the estate of Clara Johnson, deceased, has been filed in probate court by Harry J. Lewis, executor of the estate.

DECORATOR "PICKS UP" STRANGE WOMEN ON BOAT; IS DECORATED

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—After "picking up" two women on a river excursion boat Thursday night and making the round of several roadhouses in the vicinity of this city, Dunlap F. Alexander, 27, an Albany, Ala., decorator, staggered into police headquarters yesterday with a tale of having been beaten and robbed by four men introduced to him by his chance acquaintances.

He said that on leaving the boat he engaged a taxi-cab and went in it with the women to a roadhouse in Kentucky, where he met the men and dismissed the taxi on their suggestion that he transfer to their car. Subsequently, he said, he was dragged from the auto at a lonely spot on Wooster Pike, beaten with "knucks" and robbed of $60.

His assailants missed $100 in a secret pocket.

TARIFF BILL BECOME LAW LATE TODAY

Seventeen Weeks' Battle To End In Senate This Afternoon

WASHINGTON, Aug 19 The ponderous McCumber tariff bill, hailed by the Republican party as an augury of national prosperity but condemned by Democratic opposition as a harbinger of economic disaster, will be made into law by the senate late this afternoon.

Buffetted by seventeen weeks of senatorial storms, the bill will ultimately throw the highest protective tariff wall in history around every agricultural and industrial interest in the United States. Political leaders of both parties are preparing to hurl it into the maelstrom of the November elections as the principal national issue. Its supporters declared the bill will permanently protect merican industries against invasion by cheap foreign competition, give the American farmer a living return from his fields and produce $400,000,000 annually in revenues.

Its opponents charged the measure will tax the American consuming public two billion dollars annually for the benefit of the comparative few, will increase the cost of existence and destroy America's foreign markets.

"SUICIDE FOR BOTH" UNLESS STRIKE IS SETTLED IN A WEEK

—Says Cabinet Member

Fifty Per Cent Of Rolling Stock Is Unsafe, I. C. C. Reports

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19– President Harding's pronouncement that the federal government is prepared to use "every power" at its command to keep trains moving over the 250,000 miles of trackage that comprise the nation's railways system—even to utilization of troops and the legal weapon contained in the conspiracy laws—is his last word to both sides in the rail crisis, it was asserted today by administration spokesman.

For the present, it was said, the president will take no steps calculated to embarrass in any way the efforts at peaceful adjustment being made in New York by the joint conference of railway executives and union leaders. Not until it becomes apparent that the New York conference is a failure will there be any step taken to carry out the president's implied threats, it was said

"Unless both sides want to commit suicide they will settle this strike next week," a cabinet officer informed the International News Service today "If they don't settle it now the roads will be utterly unable to handle the vast amount of prosperous business that is waiting around the corner, because the condition of their motive power won't permit them to." Fifty per cent of the country's rolling stock is declared unfit for use, according to the I. C. C

While President Harding was specific in his message in asserting the determination of the government to invoke the Sherman anti-trust law against continued interruption of interstate commerce, it was nevertheless asserted by his close advisers today that the government would be extremely loath to take this step, and that it would be taken only as a last resort.

Inventory Filed

The inventory and appraisement of the estate of John M. Lower, deceased of Mill Creek-tp, which has been filed in probate court, shows the estate to be valued at $13,813.72. The appraisers were Blair Parkhill, G. S. Ruess, and F. M. Bender.

MANY WOULD SPONSOR REMEDY OF NATION'S COMING COAL FAMINE

Various Plans Are Set Forth By Members Of Both Branches

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. — Senate and house leaders were racing against time today in an admitted drive to get under the wire first with the legislation recommended by President Harding to fill the nation's empty coal bins and prevent their being empties again by a strike.

Pride of leadership and pride of authorship brot forth various plans to meet the president's proposal for a coal commission to rip the lid off the whole coal situation, and for a "temporary national coal agency, with needed capital to purchase, sell and distribute coal."

Meetings of the senate and house interstate commerce committees were scheduled for Monday

Profiteering in coal and the "pinch" of a serious coal shortage already felt in many parts of the country would administration leaders hoped, act as a spur in driving congress to act quickly, but it believed less difficulty would be experienced in setting up the proposed coal commission that in creating the price fixing agency.

The federal coal corporation was suggested as a name for the agency. It was believed the house interstate commerce committee would report a bill eventually providing for a federal coal corporation with an authorized capitalization of $100,000,000 and empowered to purchase and distribute coal only when such activities are held necessary to avert coal shortages, stabilize prices and prevent profiteering

Representative Mondell and other Republican leaders of the house said such legislation would have to be drafted with the utmost care in order to surmount possible legal obstacles

There will probably be some delay in whipping a bill providing for such an agency into a shape that will meet with the approval of a majority of both the senate and house, especially as there has already developed a wide divergence of opinion on it in both branches of congress The senate and the house interstate commerce committees is each expected to write a bill of its own.

SUPT. SHAW IS BRUISED WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Car Careens Off Edge Of Culvert In Attempt To Pass Truck

UNAVOIDABLE

School Supt. Taken Back To Warsaw For Physician's Aid

County Superintendent of Schools L. C. Shaw of Warsaw, was cut and bruised and a car belonging to J. A. Honabarger, Henderson Bldg., was badly damaged about two miles this side of Warsaw at 7:30 this morning, when the car, driven by Honabarger, went over the side of a culvert and turned over, throwing its occupants out.

Shaw was taken to Warsaw, where Dr. J. E. Hahn dressed his injuries, and was later taken home. The back of one hand was badly torn, he received a cut on his head, and complained of a pain between his shoulders.

The accident occurred when the driver of the car attempted to pass a truck belonging to M. Q. Fisher of Warsaw. The truck and the Honabarger car were both coming down from Warsaw. Honabarger said he passes the truck on the road every morning, and that he had been following the truck this morning and was going only ten or twelve miles an hour when he attempted to pass. The driver of the truck did not come on, but turned abruptly into a barnyard, it is said. Honabarger was compelled to turn so sharply to avoid hitting the truck that the car could not be straightened back to the road and careened over the side of a culvert and turned over, down the bank.

Honabarger escaped without injury, but Shaw was caught under the top of the car.

His injuries, however, are not considered serious.

The accident occurred at the Stierheim farm.

Supt Shaw was injured a year ago in another auto accident, when he was thrown from a car into the road and severely bruised.

RAIN SAVES CROPS, HELPS TO RELIEVE CITY'S SHORTAGE

After the gardens, pasture fields and corn fields have been "bone dry" for the past several days, Jupiter Pluvius contributed his offerings of rain in Coshocton-co Friday night. It rained steadily for two hours.

The farmers and gardeners were in the height of spirits Saturday as a result of the storm. The rain came down steady and is believed to have been sufficient to end the drought and the city's water shortage. Last night's rain came as a life saver to the gardens and crops.

TROOPS DETAILED ON STRIKE DUTY IN NOVA SCOTIA

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 19—At the request of General Thacker, commanding the Nova Scotia military district five hundred additional troops have been detailed to the Cape Breton coal strike area, making a total o fone thousand troops on strike duty.

Reserve mine Number 10, in the Waterford area has been totally destroyed by flooding Four other big mines in the same district are threatened.

Strike pickets are active and are succeeding in stopping all protective forces. A food shortage is imminent owing to cancellation of all freight trains.

WOMAN'S MUSIC CLUB PLANS A CONCERT SERIES IN OCTOBER

Coshocton music lovers are promised a rare treat in October, when the Woman's Music club will give a series of concerts by eminent musicians.

The concerts will be conducted for profit, it was announced, but have as their object civic service in stimulating the demand for good music. In order that all may hear them, the price of tickets will be fixed as low as possible.

The LaForge mixed quartet will be first in the series. Frank LaForge is a well-known accompanist and has coached several great singers. Under his direction the quarete has gained a high reputation

Erne to Berumen, the young pianist whose annual recitals at Aeolin hall, New York, have gained fame for him, is second in the series. He was with Mme Schumann-Heink on her recent coast-to-coast tour.

Arthur Kraft, tenor, is third on the program. Kraft has won a high place in the music world with his beautiful voice. Kraft has been chosen as the soloist in St. Bartholomew's church, New York, and will begin there September 1

The Crowning Act Of Tariff Cupidity

THE final act of political cowardice has been written into the proposed tariff bill by the inclusion in the Fordney-McCumber tariff of a provision giving the President authority to increase or decrease tariff rates.

The Fordney-McCumber bill, already highly unpopular with a large section of the Republican press and electors, has been made much more obnoxious to the people of all parties by this attempt to transfer the powers and responsibility of Congress to the President. The result to the Republicans, is sure to be hurtful to Republican chances at the polls on November 7.

Republican papers and interests which are now opposing the Fordney-McCumber bill because of its prohibitive and profiteering features will view this abdication of Congress in favor of the executive as a victory for the advocates of still higher rates. These champions of a practical embargo on imports will in their turn, it is believed, fear that President Harding will attempt to cure some of the evils of the bill and abate some of the opposition within the ranks of the Republican party by using his new authority to reduce the duties which the special interests have caused to be written into the measure at so much expense of time and effort.

If the pseudo-leaders of the senate majority have resorted to this trick to evade responsibility and culpability for the profiteers' tariff bill, they have only increased their difficulties. They have offended at once the big interests which want the duties higher than they are and the papers and people who have demanded a lowering of the rates while the bill was before Congress. Neither of these elements has been deceived and both have been displeased by the Senate's device of shifting accountability for the bill from Congress to the shoulders of the President alone.

Greater than the objection that comes from within the Republican party and the prospective beneficiaries of the profiteers' bill is that which has already been voiced by those who regard the alienation of the powers and authority of Congress to the Executive as a violation of the Constitution and a dangerous precedent. Senator Underwood and other Democratic leaders have pointed to this danger. Control of taxation and of fiscal legislation by the law-making body has been a fundamental principle of the Government of English-speaking peoples for six centuries. The Republican Senate has now for the first time in the history of the United States flaunted this principle.

Senator Walsh, who is recognized as one of the greatest Constitutional lawyers in this country, says that the Republican Senate has surrendered the functions of Congress to the President, and quotes Mr. Harding himself—he was then a Senator—in condemnation of such a proposal. Senator Walsh read into the Congressional Record Mr. Harding's own utterance on the subject. Mr. Harding said in 1918:

> "If the Senate of the United States is going to accept an Executive mandate and pass this bill, (one permitting the transfer of the powers of one department to another upon the President's order) with every suggestion of amendment refused, Congress can only fittingly complete the program by delegating the taxing and appropriation power; adjourn, and go home."

What President (then Senator) Harding opposed in 1918 was a blanket authority enabling the President to distribute the powers and duties of executive departments already under his control. The Republican Senate has done a vastly more radical and serious thing. They have vested in the President the authority to levy taxes and fix the amount that the taxpayer shall pay. To bestow any such power on the President is a dangerous novelty that traverses the Constitution, the traditions and the practices of the American Government from the beginning.

Senator Underwood, in an able appraisal of the proposition and its menace, said:

> "It is a plea of guilty to the charge of incompetency whenever the Congress of the United States passes a measure delegating its Constitutional powers to the executive branch of the Government, as it proposes to do in this pending amendment
> "More than that, outside the Constitutional question, outside of the shameful confession that is being made by the Congress of the United States in advocating the surrender of its powers, I oppose this proposition because it is very dangerous to the people of the United States to put into the hands of the Executive—and I am not criticising the present Chief Executive; there is no personal political allusion in what I intend to say; I will apply the remarks to all the Executives we have had in the past and to all we may have in the future—I say it is very dangerous to place this great power of taxation in the hands of any one man."

In the same speech Senator Underwood also made the following pertinent observations:

> "No man will know who writes the tax bills of America hereafter. We will know that a tariff Commission will lay before the President certain facts, and there the door closes. From that time until the tax rate is hred into the face of the American people it will be in obscurity, it will be hidden behind the doors of the Executive branch of the Government, and what influences may enter there you do not know.
> "I am not talking about corrupt influences in the sense of corrupting personally the President of the United States, because I believe that when a man achieves that high and exalted office the very position he occupies, unless he is a fiend indeed, must make him personally honest; but there are political influences that face every man in political position and in the exercise of political power, and when you confer on the President of the United States in this amendment the power of levying taxes on the American people in secrecy and behind closed doors, as you do in this bill you put in his hands a tremendous power that may be used for the political advantage of either himself or his party."

Nor is the blame for the political obloquy of the senate attributable to Republicans alone. Whenever local interests are affected by the Fordney-McCumber tariff measure Democratic senators have frequently been as susceptible to the dictates of selfishness as their opponents. The whole of the discussion involving the proposed tariff law has afforded one of the most disgusting spectacles ever staged by an American Congress.

New York Day-By-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 — Thoughts while strolling around New York. A group of subway track walkers. Their faces an elephantine gray. Arnold Genthe, the photographer. Looks like a country school teacher. Slim young things tripping to the Orange Pekoe parlors. Filled with serpentine knowledge. And the naive charm of doves. Italian laborers sobbing Puccini and eating garlic. Little Mary Eaton, the toe dancer. Wearing one of those Grecian robe effects. That mother is spanking her child with a loaf of bread. Bell ringing fish mongers. There's Fox, the cartoonist. I wish Clare Briggs would return my rain coat.

A black speck in the white sky. An aeroplane. Or I'm billious. Wonder if that traffic cop knows his garter is down. O, for a spreading palm and a long Tom Collins. Nurses. Babies. And the smell of parsnips. A little row of French and Italian cafes. Their doorways abloom with flowers.

Street gamins pitching pennies on a cathedral step. Old women gathering up piles of kindling. And a white hearse followed by a solitary carriage. I must snap out of this neighborhood. Over there is Cherry Hill. And the picturesque street market. Where the horse radish grinders wear masks. A district of indolence, sloth and indifference.

And here's Broadway's Automobile Row with its overtone of gaudiness. Tom Healp's old restaurant. Once the gayest spot in town. Vernon Castle used to arrive after midnight and take the trap drummer's place. And he whanged a mean skillet.

Rust spotted milk cans. Riding academies. The Hotel des Artistes. And the sweep of Ceneral Park West. Nurses with nothing to take care of save fluffy lap dogs. A smashed automobile against a park tree. The finish of a joy ride. A blue smocked painter asleep at his easel. The mid afternoon carriage riders. Cobbed horses with silver trappings. And languarous ladies with their postage stamp parasols. And there's the polar bear cage with its huge cakes of ice and swaying bears.

There is a daily air service now to Atlantic City from New York. The ship sails at four o'clock in the afternoon and returns to New York early every morning. The fare is $45 one way and $75 the round trip. The flight takes seventy five minutes. It is also possible to make an eighty minute fly to Southampton for the same price. It costs a little more to fly to Newport. The aerodromes are mostly at Garden City.

Paris night life is filled with talent familiar to New York rounders. Art Hickman's jazz orchestra, which held forth on the Midnight Frolic roof before it closed, is now in a Parisian restaurant. The Dolly sisters are doing a turn at hte Accacia Restaurant and the Folies Bergere is starring Nina Payne. Six cafes, Broadway hears, are featuring jazz players that appeared on the White Way a year ago. In a short while Paris is to see "Shuffle Along," the all colored musical production, that ran at an obscure New York theatre for more than a year and which closed only a few weeks ago. Another negro revue now at the Earl Carroll called "Strut Miss Lizzie" is to go to London after the New York engagement.

Six years ago she was heralded as one of New York's favorite show girl beauties. The other evening I saw her in a supper club. A violent twitching of the facial muscles has set in. She held one cigarette after another in palsied fingers and drank gin straight from a flask. A rather doubtful looking escort sat in boredom opposite. It was apparent that he was waiting and anxious for her to say the word to go.

WALT MASON

DISAPPOINTMENT

Disappointments bent me double, ere I long had played life's game, for I always looked for trouble, and the trouble seldom came. When I had a field of barley I would sadly gaze thereat, and remark, "So help me, Charley, hail will come and knock it flat. And if haply hail should dodge it, it will burn up in the sun, or a whirling wind will lodge it so the reaping can't be done. Or the locusts' wings will rattle as they mark it in their flight, or the neighbors' tinhorn cattle will devour it in the night. Something fierce will overtake it, rain or tempest, drouth or hail; never will the gleaner rake it, or the thresher wield his flail." But the weather was propitious, no disasters came along; my forebodings, grim and vicious, turned out altogether wrong. Yet I hunted round to borrow something that would make me glum; it is hard to bank on sorrow and to find it doesn't come. I've been always prompt to wager that a woe is just ahead; "grief in minor key or major is our portion," I have said. But I'm sore and disappointed, all my theories seem to fail; grief avaunted and arointed just when I would grab its tail.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

From The Tribune Files

The small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wheeler of East Main-st badly scalded her left arm and hand Saturday morning while playing about a bucket of boiling water.

Mrs. Roy Harden of Sixteenth-st was slightly burned Saturday morning when by mistake she filled an oil stove with gasoline instead of coal oil, causing it to explode.

What threatened to be a destructive fire was discovered early this morning under the Preston hadware store in the Geidel building and extinguished before serious damage was done.

Seth Porteus was elected to take the free course at Ohio State University, which is offered by the county fair board each year, at a meeting of the board yesterday.

That the United States is a great and wonderful country, but reeking with a tremendous amount of immorality was the point made by ex-Governor R. B. Glenn of North Carolina, at the Chautauqua Saturday afternoon.

Miss Blanch Dow of Birds Run has been engaged to act as instructor in music in Denison University during the coming year.

HOPPERBURN IS AGAIN ATTACKING OHIO SPUDS

Damage Will Be Heavy, Says Specialist In Entomology—Tells Control Method

For the fifth consecutive year, Ohio potatoes are showing severe burning and rolling of the leaves due to the presence of leafhoppers. Hopperburn has become the most important Ohio potato pest, and damage this year will be heavy, reports T. H. Parks, extension entomologist for the Ohio State University. He continues:

"Late varieties planted in May, even when mulched with straw in central counties, were seriously affected by hopperburn by the last of July, and in some cases Early Ohio potatoes died during July, before they were mature.

"In northern and northeastern counties, the leafhoppers were appearing in June-planted fields by July 15. They seem to be fully as bad, at least, as they were last year."

Hopperburn used to be known as tipburn, before it was discovered that the "burnt" places on the leaves were associated with the leafhopper, a small, green, sucking insect that can not be killed by the arsenical sprays, as can biting insects. At the same time, or shortly afterwards, it was found that Bordeaux mixture 5-7-50, a spray previously thought of as useful only for plant diseases rather than insects, will do much toward controlling the trouble by repelling the insects. Fifty farmers in eight counties who tried this control method last year got an average of 31 bushels more to the acre than on unsprayed plots left in their fields.

"The leafhopper lives on the underside of the leaves," Mr. Parks states, "and haphazard spraying is almost useless. Sprays that have three nozzles to the row, and which shoot up from the ground as well as down from above, should be used at intervals of from 10 to 14 days during August. For best results such spraying should be begun before the insects are found on the leaves."

SAYS SOUTHERN OHIO WHEAT LACKS QUALITY

Wheat Scab, Bad There, Has Cut Per-Bushel Weight Of Crop About Five Pounds, Declares Worker

While southern Ohio wheatgrowers have to a greater extent than farmers further north rid their fields of the Hessian fly, they have still a number of wheat troubles to contend with and wheat which is coming out of northern Ohio this year is generally of a superior quality.

Northern Ohio wheat of the standard varieties, submitted to the Ohio State University for inspection as certified seed, is running around 61 pounds to the bushel, while wheat of the same varieties from southern counties s weighing up only around 56 pounds to the bushel, continues Wallace E. Hanger, crops extension specialist at the University.

"It is almost as if there is a quality line, running east and west at Columbus," Mr. Hanger comments. "Wheat scab has been especially bad in the South, and there seems at present no direct way to combat this disease. Stinking smut, bad this year the State over, is also especially bad in the southern counties. This, however, can be controlled by treating the seed with formaldehyde this fall.

"Perhaps the best way to go at the wheat scab problem would be to develop in our variety standardization work a variety that is resistant to scab. Trumbull and Fulhio, two of these varieties which have shown up well in northern counties, resist this trouble very well, and it may be that these varities will produce just as well further south in the State."

ADVANCE BUDGET PLAN FOR CANNING AT HOME

College Workers Figure How Much Ought To Be Put Up To Last Over The Winter

Properly to nourish the family, there should be canned or stored enough vegetables and fruits to serve each twice a day throughout the winter.

On this basis, home demonstration specialists of the Ohio State University have worked out a canning budget for a family of five or six.

For such a family, they believe, there should be canned at least 56 quarts of greens, 64 quarts of tomatoes, 198 quarts of coarse vegetables, 242 quarts of fruit preserves, and 160 glasses of fruit jellies.

It is figured that this would allow the housewife to serve greens and tomatoes twice a week, a coarse vegetable thrice a week, and seven quart of preserves and five glasses of jelly a week throughout the entire eight months that fresh vegetables and fruits are out of season.

A list of the so-called coarse vegetables includes asparagus, beets, carrots, corn, kohl rabi, peas, and beans. All of these can be canned by the cold pack process, and the housewife may take her choice according to the tastes of her family.

The budget provides enough canned stuff for one meal a day. Enough of fruit and of such vegetables as cabbage, celery, turnips, beets, carrots, parsnips and squash can be stored to allow for the second daily dish.

Old Law Frees Negroes

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18—A forgotten state law providing that women over sixteen cannot be confined in jail more than 30 days for misdemeanors was dug up Tuesday in insolvency court to release two negro women from the county jail. Immediately after the judge had ordered their release the city prosecutor obtained a stay of execution from the court of appeals and will test the law's soundness. The women were serving out fines of $50 each and would have been in jail 86 days.

Irish Hiring Experts

LONDON, Aug. 18—The technical skill shown by the Irish Republican army in blowing up bridges has led to the charge that engineers of the Krupp works in Germany are aiding the rebels in their work of destruction, according to press reports published here this afternoon.

Miss Estella M. Clark, of Roscoe, and Clyde C. Lorenz, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Lorenz, 626 Chestnut-st, were quietly married Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, in Grace M. E. church.

The Rev. William B. Winters, pastor of the church, read the nuptial service. The couple was unattended.

The bride was costumed in a handsome dark blue tailored suit of fashona cloth, with trimmings of fitch fur. With this she wore a becoming fall hat of pheasant color, topped with pheasant feathers, and carried a shower of Ophelia roses.

Miss Clark is the attractive daughter of Mr and Mrs Alonzo Clark, and an unusually capable and accomplished young woman. After graduating from the High school at Roscoe, she entered Ohio Wesleyan university, at Delaware, where she was later graduated from the college of music. The bride is a splendid musician of recognized ability and prominent in local music and literary circles, being enrolled in the Woman's club and the Woman's Music club. The bride is not only popular socially, but active in various religious circles. For the past several years she has held the position as organist in the Grace M. E. church, of which she is a member.

The bridegroom is a prominent young business man and a partner in the Page-Lorenz Drug store. Following his graduation from the Coshocton High school, he was engaged in business at Fresno for a few years, later removing to this city. Mr. Lorenz is a member of the Masonic lodge in which he takes an active interest. Both Mr. Lorenz and his bride are well known and liked in this city and have numerous friends who will be interested to learn of their marriage.

Immediately following the ceremon, the bridal couple left for a two-weeks' motoring and camping trip along the Great Lakes. Upon their return they will be at home to their friends after September 5, in their attractive newly furnished home at 655 Locust-st.

Among the guests witnessing the wedding service were: Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz and Mr. and Mrs. Clark, parents of the bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Randles and daughter Jean, Miss Gertrude Davies and Charles Weaver.

The members in the L. D. Sewing club were pleasantly entertained at the home of Miss Mary Green, on Coshocton Route 4, Thursday evening.

Delicious refreshments were served to: Mrs. Edward Dickerson, Mrs. John Bosson and sons Joseph and Charles, Mrs. William Barrett and son Billy, Mrs. C. Borden, Mrs. Karl Totsch, Mrs. J. R. McCormick, Miss Alma Neal, Miss Mary Nelson, Miss Pearl Leavengood, Miss Gladys Fitch, and Miss Green.

The Comrades Sunday school class of the Pleasant Hill church will hold its next regular meeting, Sunday evening, August 27, at the church.

A brief program will be given, including a talk by N. H. Price, of Roscoe.

Miss Helen Fulkerson, of Zanesville, arrived Friday to visit for several days with Miss Ethel Stover, in Roscoe.

Miss Zella Elizabeth Dyser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Dyser, and Bliss Rennison Beall, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Beall, of West Lafayette, were quietly married Thursday, in Tiffin, by the Rev. George G. Shurtz.

The Rev. Shurtz was Mr. Beall's chaplain while serving witn the U. S. army in the 308th engineers' division in the World war.

After a two-weeks' motoring trip thru Ohio and Michigan, Mr. Beall and his bride will return to West Lafayette where they will be at home to their many friends.

Relatives and close friends of the G. W. Frederick family gathered at the home of Herman J. Kaser, in Warsaw, Thursday, for their fourth annual reunion.

Dinner was served at 12:30 o'clock, covers being arranged for 200 relatives and guests.

During the afternoon an entertaining program was given, including songs, vocal numbers, speeches and impromput remarks.

Those attending from this city were: W. W. Frederick, Mrs. J. C. Norris, H. P. Mohler and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Murry.

Officers were elected as follows: Elizabeth Laflin, president; J. C. Frederick, vice president; Flora Kaser, secretary; H. P. Frederick, treasurer; Mamie Myers, Winifred Frederick, Jane Frederick and Harrison Frederick, entertainment committee; Elizabeth Smailes, Herman Kaser, John Frederick and Rolland Frederick, second committee on entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Gallaher and small daughter, 925 Walnut-st, will return home Saturday evening from Norton, and Harding, West Va., where they have been visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bailey, of Columbus, are spending several days visiting with relatives in Coshocton co.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Seevers and children Dorothy and Raymond, of Columbus, motored thru Saturday to spend the week-end with Mrs. Seevers's mother, Mrs. Ina Kimberly, 514 Wilson-av.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kutrz, daughters Stella and Erma Claire and son Clenneth, of Pittsburgh, Pa., will motor thru from their home, Saturday, to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Bordenkircher, 630 south Lawn-av, over the week end.

Mrs. Otto Brice and daughters Claudia and Dorothy, 429 north Eighth-st, went to Canton, Saturday for a week end holiday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Latham, former Coshocton residents.

Mrs. Henry T. Clark and son James, Realty-apts, Main-st, went to Columbus, Saturday, to be the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Nora T. Baker, for a fortnight.

The annual reunion of the McAllister relatives will be held Saturday, August 26, at Fairlawn park.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Waters, and daughters, 904 Vine-st, are in Warsaw, Saturday, attending the annual reunion of the Waters families, which is being held at the home of John Waters.

Members of the Chalfant Standard Bearers' society met Wednesday evening, at the home of Miss Nolah and Clee Sensibaugh.

Music and games furnished diversion during the evening, preceding the serving of delicious refreshments by the host and hostess.

The following responded to roll call: the Misses Ruth Wright, Ruth Hatton, Marguerite Dickerson, Edith Trout, Elizabeth McMorris, Eulah Little, Ivy Smith, Agnes Barcus, Dorothy Bonham, Nilah Sensibaugh and the Messrs. Fulton Wright, Warren Dickerson, Burt Norris, John McMorris, Earl Kerr, Clarence Barcus, Harold Bonham, Ray Chaney, Russell Thomas, Jacob Way, and Clee Sensibaugh, members of the society. Others enjoying the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Little, Mrs. J. F. Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bonham, Mrs. J. M. Sensibaugh, the Misses Lucile and Ruth Bonham, Miss Marguerite Hartsough, Virgie Maston, Delpha Maston, Russell Darr, Donald Trego, David Croy, Russell Hardesty, Lester Maston, Ward Chaney, Carey Unsley, David and James Little and Raymond Hartsough.

SUCCEEDS WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Often Does That.—Read Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you can see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner.

That's the truth of the matter. If you are suffering from any of the troubles women have, you ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

Good Night Stories

THE LITTLE WATER-BEETLE WHO COULD NOT WAIT.

DOWN at the bottom of the old millpond there once lived a family of water-beetles. They were quite happy and contented with their watery home, until one day Mr Green Frog returned from a visit out on the grassy bank and told them of the glories of the meadow land.

"And you say there are grass and flowers and birds and everything?" asked the oldest of the water-beetle boys. "Is it always light up there in this wonderful meadow land?"

"Yes, and there's lots more besides," croaked Mr Green Frog. "I tell you I feel sorry for any one who has to spend his life cooped up in this pond. By the way, isn't it about time that you fellows crawled out of your clothes and ventured out a bit?"

"What?" exclaimed the oldest water-beetle boy. "Will we ever be able to go out into this wonderful meadow you tell us of?"

His brothers and sisters crowded around in great excitement. It was the first time they had ever heard that there was anything for them beyond the millpond.

"Of course you can see the meadows," replied Mr. Green Frog. "All you have to do is to—"

"Wait until you're old enough to know what you're doing!" snapped Billy Turtle. "When you're old enough your mother will come back and tell you what to do and what not to do."

"Pooh," growled the oldest water-beetle boy. "There's no use waiting. I for one am ready this very second, and I mean to see the world."

With a wild rush he climbed up the tallest weed he could find right out into the brilliant sunshine. It was so different from the light he had been used to that he had to blink and blink his eyes before he could see at all. Then, too, his skin felt so very queer that it almost frightened him. He would have turned back if it hadn't been for fear the others would make fun of him.

"Spread out your wings, you goose!" croaked Mr. Green Frog, and the water-beetle boy spread out his pretty wings and sailed away into the sunshine.

It was a wonderful meadow, but the water-beetle boy would have enjoyed it more if the sun hadn't been so terribly bright. It nearly blinded him, and he couldn't see where he was flying.

"I Knew It!"

"I guess it doesn't make much difference where you fly," croaked Mr. Green Frog from the bank. "Only don't fly too near Billy Blue-jay's bill."

But the advice was given too late, for Billy Blue-jay, always ready to gobble up anything that crossed his path, caught hold of the water-beetle boy's leg and would have devoured him right then and there if the water-beetle boy hadn't pulled and pulled with all his might. He lost his leg, but he felt a happy relief when he once more landed in the cooling waters of the pond.

"I knew it!" snapped Billy Turtle. "Little water-beetles who grow impatient always come to grief. In the first place, who ever heard of water-beetles flying in the broad daylight? Water-beetles who are wise fly only at night when the moon is shining," and with a disgusted sigh Billy Turtle swam away.

You may be sure that the impatient little water-beetle never again tried flying in the broad daylight.

HALLUCINATION OF TREASURY CLERK PUZZLES MEDICS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — Capital medical authorities were puzzling today over one of the strangest cases ever brot to their attention. Mrs Gladys Murray, 48, said to be a clerk in the treasury department, was picked up in a semi-conscious condition on F. street. She was unable to speak. At the Emergency hospital she was given pencil and paper on which she wrote:

"I am a medium and have no control over my condition." Later she startled the physicians by apparently regaining use of her voice, saying "Now I can speak to you." Almost immediately, according to physicians, she was seized with a violent spell of trembling and again lapsed into silence, signalling for a pad and pencil on which she wrote. "A spirit would like to write. I am a man who lived on earth and I am sent by God to control this woman you see. No one believes the truth we have spoken thru her lips. The spirits say they have done this to me to prove they have power over human beings."

BANDITS KILL ONE, INJURE ANOTHER ESCAPE WITH PAY

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19—William B. Norris, 42 years old, secretary and treasurer of the Hicks, Tase & Norris company, contractors and builders, and Fred W. Keuthe, a bookkeeper for the firm, started yesterday from the Commonwealth bank for the company's office, less than two blocks away—with a $9,750 payroll. One block from the bank they were attacked by a bandit. Norris was shot to death and Keuthe was struck over the head with the butt end of an automatic revolver.

The bandits escaped in an automobile after holding scores of pedestrians at bay.

WOMEN! DRY CLEAN THINGS AT HOME
Try it! For a few cents you can dry clean everything.
Save five to ten dollars quickly by dry cleaning everything in the home with gasoline that would be ruined by soap and water—suits, coats, waists, silks, laces, gloves, shoes, furs, draperies, rugs—everything!
Place a gallon or more of gasoline in a dishpan or washboiler, then put in the things to be dry cleaned, then wash them with Solvite soap. Shortly everything comes out looking like new. Nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles. Do not attempt to dry clean without Solvite soap. This gasoline soap is the secret of all dry cleaning.
A package of Solvite soap containing directions for home dry cleaning, costs little at any drug store. Dry clean outdoors or away from flame.

FIND CLOTHING PRICES IN ACCORD WITH TREND

Have Gone Up And Down With Those Of Wool And Cotton, Say Agricultural Investigators

Clothing prices have moved since the war in accordance with the general price trend of all commodities, and there has been no considerable disproportion between the wholesale selling price of cotton and wool and the wholesale selling price of cloths and clothing.

Having centered on clothing prices in the most recent of their monthly price level surveys, rural economists of the Ohio State University announce this as their conclusion.

"Of course the price of cloths and of clothing has been more stable than has the price of wool," remarks C. R. Arnold, the economist writing the report. "That, however, is always the case when one compares the price of a raw product with those of the articles that are manufactured from it.

"The point that stands out from our inquiry is that wool and clothing have shown since June, 1921, a tendency to seek the same level.

"As to wool and clothing, we opened our study at 1913. Wool started up first when the war broke out, because wool is always in great demand in wartime. Clothing prices followed less rapidly, but consistently. Both broke sharply when the war ended, and then rose quickly with the post-war boom.

"During the past year, the average price of all commodities gained 8 per cent, while cloths and clothing advanced 7 per cent in price."

TWO CREATIONS IN CRETONNE

From Garden Gostumes to Chic Daytime Coats Cretonne Is "The Thing"

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

CRETONNE has rapidly increased in favor, and as its popularity grows, the designers discover more and more interesting ways to use it.

The cretonne dress and the cretonne-covered chair have met on more than one occasion, and now the smart woman has decided that she can easily "laugh off" any such meeting. She indorses the use of cretonne in her further acceptance of it for garden costume or coat.

The garden costume at the left of the illustration is as appealing as it is smart. Yellow, green and blue flowers pose gayly against a white background. A white gulmpe relieves the color scheme and sets off the green binding which finishes the neck and armholes of the costume. Her hat is of the same cretonne, lined in white.

Of deeper tone is the cretonne which forms the top-coat worn by the other figure. Black and tomato flowers stud its tan background, giving a rich color effect which is very smart when the top-coat enveiops a sports costume of white.

Why Science Is Winning In War Against Tuberculosis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

TUBERCULOSIS has been named the great white plague. One-tenth of all the deaths in the United States are due to tuberculosis. Over 100,000 persons die in this country each year from this dread disease. This is at the rate of one person every four minutes. The annual economic loss from this cause has been estimated at one billion dollars.

The presence in the body of the germ of tuberculosis is not always followed by the disease tuberculosis. There enters into the matter another factor, and that is the resistance of the individual.

Autopsies performed on a very large number of persons who died of diseases other than tuberculosis show evidence of the disease in more than 90 per cent.—one observer says in 98 per cent.—of all cases. We now believe that most persons are infected sometime, usually early in life.

Fortunately, the majority of those infected with tuberculosis have within themselves the power to resist the disease. But if this resistance is broken down the germ becomes active and the patient yields to the disease.

This is the reason why it is so important for us to guard the health if we wish to avoid this terrible affliction. This is why poverty, poor food, bad housing, overwork, worry, intemperance and dissipation produce the disease. All these things lessen the resistance of the individual, allowing the ever-present germs to become active.

Tuberculosis is both preventable and curable in early adult life. Its mortality is greatest between the ages of 25 and 35. In other words, when the individual should be of the greatest use to the world, and when he has the largest number of dependents, that is the very time he yields to this dreadful disease.

We can guard ourselves from tuberculosis by maintaining good health which increases our natural immunity. We can guard against infection by avoiding contact with persons having the disease, and who are careless in exposing others.

There is no specific cure for tuberculosis. There is no drug which alone will affect its course, nor has a serum or vaccine been produced which will control it. The cure of the disease resolves itself into the up-building of the individual and improving his general health so that the natural immunity which every one possesses will bring about the arrest of the disease.

It is gratifying to know that tuberculosis is much less prevalent and less fatal than it used to be. We are learning how to live, and with increased knowledge of the ways to keep well and by putting this knowledge into practice there should come complete safety from infection.

Answers to Health Questions

H. V. Q—Whenever I laugh, sing or play an instrument in the presence of people, my eyes start watering and I become very embarrassed. Kindly tell me what to do for this.

A—The only way to overcome this embarassment is to try to think less of yourself, as a self-conscious person never can have poise.

J. R. Q—Please tell me what way the base of a prism should be worn for a case where the eye is turned toward the nose.

A—When a prism is called for, its base corresponds to the weak muscle. In the case you mention it would be at the outer or temple side of the eye. I doubt, however, if in a case as decided as this a prism would help. Prisms are useful when there is a tendency to deviation and not when there is actual turning. You had better consult a specialist for an examination and treatment.

G. S. A. Q—Will you kindly suggest a good tonic?

A—Go to your own doctor and have him prescribe a tonic for you after he has examined you.

* * *

J. M. D. Q—I have a leaking valve of the heart and very frequently get severe pains. Is there any danger of sudden death from this trouble?

A—With proper care of yourself and conscientious observation of your doctor's orders, there is no reason why you should not be all right.

A READER. Q—Will you please tell me whether there is any cure for knock-knees?

A—There is no cure for this condition.

M. M. P. Q—Whenever I take a deep breath, I get a severe pain in the lower part of my chest, which lasts from 10 minutes to an hour. I have had only a few attacks. What would you advise me to do?

A—This is probably due to indigestion and can be overcome by proper diet. If you will restate your question and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, full particulars on the treatment of indigestion will be furnished.

How to Exercise to Gain Ease and Grace in Walking

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

PERFECT poise is the secret of charm. Study any woman who possesses infinite charm and you will find that among other things she possesses that poise which suggests calm repose.

The nervous, fidgety woman is never at ease. If she comes to call on you she is likely to pick up some object from the table and to play with it and finger it nervously while she talks to you.

Have you noticed the distracting habit many persons have of fingering the silver at the table?

This same caller who annoyed you because of her nervous habits would annoy you even more at a dinner-party or at any table where she happened to be seated near you. She would doubtless play with her fork or spoon between courses until you almost wished you could take them away from her.

If you find yourself drifting into nervous little mannerisms which destroy your repose of manner, you should immediately set about to overcome such habits.

The first step I will suggest is developing poise in your walk. If you learn to carry yourself in an easy manner which bespeaks the spirit of grace, you will find yourself carrying this poise into your smaller mannerisms.

The perfect, graceful walk gives you a buoyancy of manner which is apparent to your friends, and which they enjoy in you. You feel more vibrant because you have walked easily, breathed deeper and gained life and added vitality.

Now I am going to give you an exercise which will help you to swing along with the graceful ease which makes you enjoy walking:

Stand with one of your feet in advance of the other in step position. Place your hands on your hips, fingers forward.

Now rise on your toes.

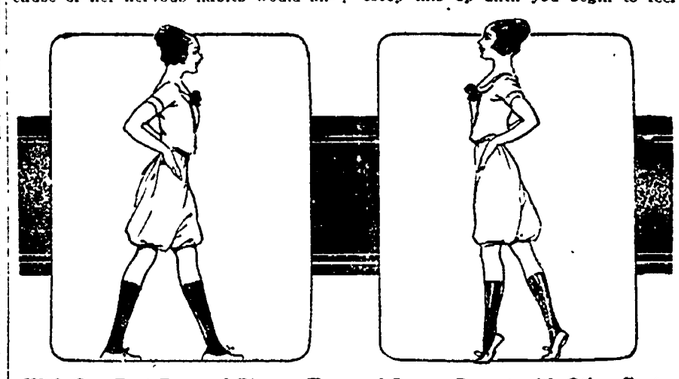
Practice swaying back and forth in this position, rising to your toes and lowering yourself again to position with your feet flat upon the floor.

Keep this up until you begin to feel tired. Never carry on with an exercise when it makes you tired.

Rest a minute, then alternate, placing your other foot forward and going on with the same exercise.

Now, when you walk, try to feel this easy elasticity in your ankles. Throw your chest out, hold your chin in and walk with easy grace. Avoid any outward swinging of the legs, which is very ugly. Place your feet almost straight in front of you, and realize that your legs are only the agents of your walk. Any small swinging of your body should come from your waist up, not below your waist.

Breathe deep and benefit by your walking. You should in this way overcome nervousness and the consequent little habits which destroy your ease and charm.



With One Foot Forward Rise on Toes and Sway—Repeat with Other Foot.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT The Orchard Knitters

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

AND they knitted—the two of them—all day long and every minute of the day, except when they were eating luncheon and when they were driving along at the rate of forty miles an hour.

They drove fast because they told their husbands they must hurry up and get back home—they wanted to finish their knitting.

And it was a glorious day—cool and foggy in town, and bright and sunny in the hills, and the place they chose for the picnic—what a field of delight!

It isn't really a field, though—it's an orchard. Old and forsaken and forgotten, the trunks of the trees are brown and gray and the limbs are hung in soft gray moss. In the spring, the trees are pink with apple blossoms and white with cherry petals and snowy with the drifted fragrance of the plum.

Now the leaves are green and shiny and the fruit hangs just beginning to redden from every gnarled limb—"God's orchard," we called it, the day we discovered it.

We drove down the highway and through the green hills and past the blue lakes and up through a wild glen where the fog rolled and the winds whistled and the road grew rougher and wilder every minute. And suddenly we ran out of the fog and out of the wind and out of the wild woods, and—there was the orchard, smiling in the bright sunshine. It was quiet and serene up there, and down below we saw the blue sea and the white and foamy breakers.

That's when we named it "God's Orchard."

Knitting Always Knitting

And we sat under the trees and told old stories of beautiful queens and sad kings and romantic princesses. And one recited an old Norwegian Saga all about the Cave of Silver and the cruel Norse Maiden who sent her sweetheart to look for it—and one recited a beautiful poem full of peace and the humming of bees and the brown wrens building in the thatch. And we never could forget "God's Orchard," no matter where we were.

And when things were crowded and life was complex and there were worries and fears and little annoyances, we looked at each other and thought:

"Ah, well, there's 'God's Orchard'—some day we will go there again."

And we were quieted and appeased.

And yesterday we went—but we took others with us, three cars full of others, and the blue lakes gleamed in the sunlight, but the knitter on the back seat was telling about a new stitch and didn't notice the lake.

And the fog rolled in the wild glen and the winds whistled and the knitter on the front seat was talking about well——

"When we get to the orchard," I thought, "it will be different."

And the orchard was there, just the same. All gray and silver and soft green, and at the foot of the cliffs below the blue sea threw up white arms of joyous gayety as if a great troop of dancers dressed in blue frolicked upon the silver sand.

"Is this the place?" asked the front-seat knitter, as she carried her knitting bag carefully to a flat rock.

And the knitter from the back seat picked her steps and followed, and there they sat all through the delicious day—knitting.

One Interest Only

And they never saw the orchard or the sea at all.

And they wouldn't sing and they didn't want to read, and they didn't care for poetry—they just knitted—some new stitch it was they were learning. And at night, when we started home, they were quite triumphant and held up their knitting to show us how far they had gotten.

I wonder why such people go to the woods or to the mountains or to the lakes on to the sea. Why don't they stay at home—and knit?

It would be cheaper and better in every way.

As for me, I'm going back by the blue lakes and up the wild road and over through the fog, and when we get to the top of the mountain and I see far below the blue water and the white surf—I'm going to apologize to the orchard for bringing the knitters to intrude upon the quiet and the beauty.

I wonder if the gray old trees will understand.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Suggestion Tom Chester Voiced with Fear.

AT Lillian's admonition to go on with his story, Tom Chester turned toward her with a jerk of the shoulders—not foreign enough to be a shrug—which expressed as plainly as words could have done the resentment he felt toward Allen Drake. That the older man's thinly disguised ridicule had angered him was plainly to be seen, but it was also patent that he meant to ignore both the gibe and the giber.

"We went over to Riverhead," young Mr. Chester continued, "and found the chaps with the limousine had given out that they were making a map of automobile roads through this section. They had a couple of local loafers helping them—fellows of the type that will keep their mouths shut for money. But one of us had something on one of them, and after a little persuasion he came clean with everything he had, and is making regular reports to us of everything they do. And I'll say they've been some busy little parties. They've spent their waste time in the car, and if there's a square inch of the most secluded wood road in this section that they haven't explored, I'll eat it. They had the loafers trail them in the smallest car they could buy, and they used it over the wood roads too narrow for the big car. If they are making a map, they'll sure have a peach when they get through!"

"You Mean—"

From my father's side I saw Lillian and Allen Drake exchange swift significant glances, and at the same instant my father's hand on my shoulder tightened as if involuntarily. That the three experienced secret service officials saw something in the young soldier's story which was evidently not apparent to him I was sure.

"And if they're planning a quick get-a-way for somebody who's cooking up a stunt that will demand one—"Allen Drake said crisply, every trace of a drawl gone from his tone.

"Exactly," Lillian acquiesced, and Tom Chester looked from one face to the other with horrified comprehension dawning in his eyes.

"You mean," he addressed Lillian, still ignoring Allen Drake, "that the man Smith—"

"The man Smith," Lillian repeated, her voice almost rasping so tense was it, "just now has two ideas in his half-crazed but diabolically cunning brain. One is the recovery of the secret code in the eyeglass case he lost here on the night he searched Katie's room. The other is his desire to get even with Madge and the Dicky-bird for the way they crabbed his game up in the Catskills. He's going to try both stunts before he leaves here. And a neat little murder more or less while he is on the job would be a mere detail to the gifted Mr. Smith."

A Disconcerting Tribute.

Tom Chester had been looking intently at Lillian as she was speaking, but at her last words his horrified eyes leaped to me. That he already saw me the victim of an assassin's hand was as evident as was his boyish determination to do everything in his power to protect me.

"Then—then—" he stammered, "we are wasting time, aren't we? You say Dr. Pettit is not going to tell Smith that his ankle is well until tomorrow morning. He is really a fugitive from justice, I think you said. I can go down right now and nab him if you say the word."

Lillian smiled at him sympathetically, but her negative was prompt.

"That's what ought to be done, but unfortunately we cannot permit it just yet," she said. "He must be allowed to run loose for awhile, so that he will finally lead us to the biggest lair of all. And he must be given the opportunity to steal back his eyeglass case with the code inside."

"But—" Tom Chester sprang to his feet, his eyes blazing with excitement, the blood receding from his tanned cheeks. "You—you—are risking her life!"

The boyish voice rang like a clarion through the room. There was no mistaking the tense fear which was swaying him, making him forgetful of conventionality, indeed, of everything else save my safety.

It was a tribute of which any woman might be proud, and I was conscious of a secret thrill at the boy's championship, but for the most part I was distinctly uncomfortable. I could feel every pair of eyes in the room upon me—Tom Chester's frightened ones, my father's with amazed disapproval, Lillian's amused eyes—Allen Drake's—I could imagine their sneer behind his masking eyelashes.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

The Ways to Prepare Five Famous Fish Dishes.

FAMOUS fish dishes are sectional and sometimes national but with the help of reliable recipes they may be tried with fresh or canned products in almost any part of the world where fish is procurable. The love of fish is not confined to those who live by the sea, for nowadays canned, bottled and otherwise preserved fish is so generally distributed that even the landsman may feast on a good variety of variety.

The recipe for the famous French combination soup and fish dish, bouillabaisse, should be added to every kitchen collection. The index of the following is the sweet version.

Bouillabaisse.

Put a cupful of olive oil into the bottom of the chowder kettle and add two minced onions, a diced bulb of fennel, a thinly-sliced leek, a thinly sliced carrot, a bay leaf, four cloves, half of a lemon minced, two large tomatoes peeled and sliced, or a cupful of canned tomatoes, two cupfuls of hot water, and then three pounds of fish cut in steaks or short thick fillets. The fish may be of different kinds if desired. Cover the pot and simmer the fish for twenty minutes, then add a half-cupful of boiled shrimps, a dozen oysters or soft clams, a half-cupful of fresh, boiled crabmeat, the juice of a lemon, a saltspoonful of saffron and salt and pepper. Simmer five minutes covered. Place enough carefully-made toast in a deep dish to cover the bottom, moisten with a little of the gravy, then lift the fish with a skimmer onto the toast, and strain the liquid, and serve it as a soup at the same time that the fish is served. Garnish the fish with chopped parsley. In some places the soup is served right with the fish. This is just a matter of fancy, as either way is correct.

The Italian fishermen have a dish called "Chipeno," which is made almost the same way as the bouillabaisse, except that they add a cupful of wine to the gravy and serve all in one dish. These dishes are also akin to our own fish or New England clam chowder.

Russian Tsorbassi.

Fillet two pounds of white fish and place it in a kettle with two cupfuls of cut up soup vegetables and three pints of water. Add seasoning, cover and simmer until the fish is done. Lift out the fish, strain the liquid and thicken it slightly, add a cupful of shrimps and the liver, and some spices, two tablespoonfuls of rice are put in with the shrimps, and the soup is boiled until the rice is done, or from twenty to twenty-five minutes, instead of being thickened.

Austrian Trout.

Put three pints of carefully-made bouillon into a deep frying pan and when it boils up in one at a time, as many as can not brook trout as are needed. Cook them eight or ten minutes, according to their size, then lift with a skimmer, a fish slice, turn over them a highly seasoned caper or Hollandaise sauce, and garnish them with sprays of cress and lemon slices.

Japanese Raw Fish.

Take one of the pink or white meated fishes and lay the fillets into a marinade made of spiced vinegar, a chopped onion, a chopped, seeded pepper, a little fresh green ginger root, a little sugar and a little soy sauce. When ready, drain and serve as a relish.

Chinese Pineapple Pike.

Take a good-sized, thick pike, clean it, cutting off the head and tail, split it, remove the backbone, dust with pepper and salt, sprinkle with onion juice and fry it in oil, drain it, then lay it on a hot dish. Have ready a sauce made by boiling the fish bones and head with vegetables, ginger root, seasoning, a little soy, the Chinese sauce, and two cupfuls of water. When done, strain, thicken and add a cupful of chopped pineapple and a half-cupful of fried mushrooms. Turn the sauce over the fish and serve.

Three Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE RAISING THE HAT IS A SIGN OF LACK OF RESPECT.

THERE are no two nations more particular about their "manners" than the Chinese and the Japanese. The customs of these people of the East are very similar. But many a custom which they follow so rigidly would be a "faux pas" in another country.

For instance a Chinese would not think of removing his hat when greeting or leaving a friend or upon entering a house. Keeping his hat on is a mark of the deepest respect which the well-bred native will never forget to observe in his country. A Chinese woman would be highly indignant if a man raised his hat to her.

A Proper Chinese Greeting.

However, in both China and Japan the natives remove their shoes when entering the house of a friend. This is quite "the thing" to do! That is probably the reason slippers are worn so extensively in the East. It is more convenient to remove slippers than to stop to unlace shoes.

A guest of an easterner is always expected to take off his shoes and leave his hat on. Then when the host or other members of the family enter the room they show their appreciation of the honor done the household by bowing very low and sucking in their breath loudly.

They never shake hands, but bow almost continuously from the time a guest enters until he leaves. A visitor who is not a native cannot help but marvel at the exercise which the back of an easterner can stand. They bend them back and forth until they almost have the appearance of being made of rubber.

Kissing or embracing in any manner simply "is not being done." As a result of the difference in customs of the East and the West a westerner has to watch his "p's and q's" closely in order to avoid a misunderstanding with his host.

Of all of the many things which he has to remember there is none quite so important as to keep his hat on in the presence of his eastern friends.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, AUG. 19.

While the sidereal operations for this day point to certain favorable changes or propitious moves, yet there are many conflicting testimonies. The latter portend financial hazards and make speculation of any character risky. They also presage affliction or anxiety in the household, either in the matter of physical health or other untoward condition. Despite delays and obstacles the prospect is for radical change, which will ultimately prove advantageous.

Those whose birthday it is have the prophecy of a year of checkered experiences. While there is forecast of important and profitable change, yet there may be grief or affliction in the household, and financial affairs may be attended with hazard unless they are wisely managed. A child born on this day, although it will be clever, inventive and original in thought, may be careless and extravagant unless well-trained in carefulness and thrift.

ADVICE TO GIRLS :: By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 18 years of age. I have been going with a young man three years my senior for nearly a year. He says he loves me and often speaks of marrying. I love him dearly. My home is not such a pleasant one and sometimes I get blue and despondent.

Do you think I am too young to settle down and undertake the responsibilities of married life? I'm not a flapper, so it really wouldn't be hard to "settle down." DREAMS.

DREAMS: If your parents consent to your marrying a man whom you love and who loves you and is worthy of your affection, I see no reason why you should not marry.

Not knowing the circumstances of your home surroundings, which you say are not pleasant, I cannot advise you from that standpoint. However, maybe you could help make things more pleasant. Why not try? You are young and have plenty of time in which to choose a life companion. Marrying for a home is a big risk. Do not marry without the consent of your parents.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

Do you think a woman who is engaged should go with other men?

Do you think she ought to go to movies and other places with another man?

Do you think it right for her to allow a man to call to see her and stay late when she is engaged?

Do you think she ought to keep it a secret from the one to whom she is engaged? BOBBY.

BOBBY: No, to all your questions. You owe respect and consideration and honesty to the one you are engaged to marry, and any violation of the faith placed in you is a bitter wrong.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am very fond of a certain young man here, but I'm not sure that he cares anything for me. Shall I keep on going with him? RITA.

RITA: Keep the young man for a friend, by all means. Every young man whom you know or with whom you are friendly does not necessarily have to be in love with you, does he, my dear, in order that you may have good times together?

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Sport Chatter

The Yankee came up to a tie with the Browns for first place by knocking the White Sox off, 8 to 7. Ruth's twenty third home run of the season winning it in the tenth.

After blithely tossing off five straight, the Cardinals finally snapped out of their losing streak by beating the Phils, 3 to 2. It took them 14 innings.

Rip Collins shut the Tigers out, 8 to nothing, this being only the fourth time this season the Cobb entry has failed to score. The Red Sox hit Olsen freely. The Browns dropped an 8 to 4 verdict to the Athletics and forfeited their monopoly on first place as a result. Naylor kept the hits scattered: Vangilder and Kolp did not.

The wild exhibition the Giants overcame the Cubs' early lead and won, going away 11 to 7. The champs scored ten runs in the fifth inning. Pitchers were'nt worth a dime a dozen.

Erickson could'nt stand prosperity and cracked behind a three run lead in the sixth, the Indians getting five runs and beating the Senators, 7 to 5.

AUSTRALIANS ARE FAVORED TO WIN

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19 — Needing only a single victory in the two singles matches today to clinch their right to meet Monday in the challenge round, the Australians are favored to win over Spain in the final round of the Davis Cup series. Spain, however, is expected to put up a strenuous battle. The Paterson-Alonzo mate his the big feature of the day. In the other O'Hara Wood will meet Count De Gomar.

Evans "Talks" Caddies Thru College

When the First National Caddies' Championship was originally discussed the question of expense arose, for even caddies cannot remain amateurs if they take money for anything but caddying. So Charles "Chick" Evans, golf champion, a former caddy and now a Chicago banker, agreed to "talk off" the expenses of the match to be held at the Edgewater Golf Club, Chicago, in September. Accordingly, he arranged to give golf lessons in talking machine records, every cent thus received to go for the "Caddy Championship Fund." So successful have been the records that enough money has been provided to send the five best caddy golfers thru college, and golfers have gotten valuable hints from the noted player.

GALLERIES HOPE TO SEE GIRL DEFEAT CHAMPION TODAY

FOREST HILLS, L. I., N. Y., Aug. 19.—The most popular figure in the tournament has gone thru the final round against one of the most unpopular champions American tennis ever had and if 16-year-old Helen Wills of San Francisco beats Molla Mallory out of her national singles title today the courts of the West Side Tennis Club will be the scene of a wild demonstration.

Tacitly American galleries have turned thumbs down on Mrs. Mallory. A woman who wins a championship six times invites unpopularity, and Mrs. Mallory's attitude on the courts and in the club-house has strengthened rather than disipated this feeling. If Helen Wills wins the championship at the age of 16, her popularity will be no whit less than was that of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy who came into her first title at the same age 18 years ago. It is possible that she will beat Mrs. Mallory today but not probable She has the strokes, the generalship, the speed and in fact everything that goes with a champion's game. But she is only a child, the other a mature woman.

SARAZEN WINS ON OAKMONT COURSE

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 19 Gene Sarazan become the first title holder of two professional titles in the history of American golf in winning the final round of the professional golfers' association championship from Emmett French, of Youngstown, Ohio, 1 up and ½ to play. Sarazan, a caddy three years ago, won the national open championship at Skokie some weeks ago. His victory here was the most popular since David son Herron another local player, won the amateur crown of the same course in 1919.

WELLSVILLE TO PLAY REGULARS TOMORROW P. M.

The fast Wellsville, O., baseball aggregation is scheduled in Coshocton Sunday. The team is to play at New comerstown this afternoon if the weather man permits.

The Wellsville club is better known as the Merchants' baseball club. According to their past records on the diamond, they have a fast team and should give the locals a fast game

Following is the lineup the Wellsville manager submitted to Secretary Briggs: Nobers of Ambridge, Pa. and Hamilton, on the Liverpool, [illegible] ers; Mays, of Salineville, O.; Jones, of Scottsdale, Pa; McGeehan, of East Liverpool, O. and Keely, of Pennsylvania State college, pitchers, Wagner, of Mt Union college, third base, Patterson, of Bethaney and Boyd, of Beaverfalls, O., short stop; Morgan, second base; Dautman, of El Paso, Tex., on first base, Roger, of Wellsville on left field; Cheney, of New Kingston, Pa, in middle field and Manning, of Wellsville in right garden.

OUTFIELDER DENIES HE WAS CAUSE OF DOUGLAS' DOWNFALL

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19. -Leslie Mann, outfielder for the Cardinals, today denied that he "turned in" Phil Douglas, former Giant twirler, barred from baseball for an alleged offer to "lay down" on his team.

In denying a statement attributed to Douglas, Mann said that he did not receive the letter in question or a telephone call in Boston. Douglas said he called Mann after writing the letter and asked Mann to "tear up the offer."

QUESTION IS WHETHER DEMPSEY 'GO' WILL BE PRIZEFIGHT OR BOUT

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 19.—Gloom prevailed in the training camps of Jack Dempsey and Bill Brennan today. Governor Warren T. McCray having issued an official edict to a sheriff not to permit the two heavyweights to fight in Floyd Fitzsimmons' big bowl here on Labor Day afternoon, both Jack and Bill were up against a proposition of "what to do."

The governor says the bout will be a prizefight. Indiana doesn't permit such scraps. Promoter Fitzsimmons who has staged several big bouts here, asserts the scheduled ten round bout, given under the auspices of the American Legion will conform to every ruling of the Indiana boxing law permitting exhibitions of the manly art. Both Dempsey and Brennan continued the training grind.

BUCYRUS, Aug. 19—A death claim of $5,000 has been paid by the Pennsylvania railroad company in record-breaking time.

On Tuesday, August 8th, Walter H. Bowers, of Ft. Wayne, while working in the shops of the railroad company at Crestline as air brake inspector, was fatally burned when another employe of the company in passing the open fire box of an engine threw a bunch of waste into it. The flames burst out, catching fire to Bowers' clothing and burning him so badly that he died, Thursday, August 10, from the result of the burns.

The same afternoon the company filed an application in probate court here before Judge George Sheets, asking allowance of a death settlement in the sum of $5,000 for Bowers' death, the widow, Anna M. Bowers of Ft. Wayne, approving the settlement. Judge Sheets approved the settlement and the widow was paid the death benefit.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19—July was another banner month in the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment through the office of Federal Prohibition Director J. E. Russell.

In the city of Cleveland there were 102 arrests and 103 prosecutions under Federal warrants. There was also some considerable additional action in Toledo where 60 were arrested, and 53 prosecuted. The other dry areas put in a busy summer month, according to records of the prohibition officials.

According to the figures compiled by Federal Prohibition Director Russell for the five largest cities in the state, including Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus and Youngstown:

In these five cities 254 arrests were made, 235 prosecutions carried on, $63,850 assessed in fines, $163,597 collected in taxes and $157,444 collected in penalties, under prohibition laws.

NELSONVILLE, Aug. 19—As a result of the railroad shop men's strike, difficulty is being experienced in shipping out the big peach crops reported in Southern Ohio. House-to-house sales methods are being used by farmers in selling their peaches. Housewives are buying enough peaches to have a canned supply on hand for several years to come, at near $1 per bushel.

MIDDLEPORT, Aug. 19 — Bloodhounds brought here from Huntington, W. Va., after the recent Taylor drug store robbery, led officials to the home of Frank Van Cooney, and finally the bed where Van Cooney lay asleep. He was arrested with another alleged suspect. The bloodhounds also traced down a considerable amount of the stolen goods, hidden under a rail pile.

ELYRIA, Aug. 19 — J. B. Johnson, general manager of the Ohio Public Service company, has appealed to the police to give warning to local youngsters to keep off of high tension poles. He declared that they should be warned that they are flirting with sudden death.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19—Local railroad strikers planned to hold a benefit carnival show to provide relief funds for families hard hit by the strike. On the opening night it was discovered that equipment had failed to arrive. The rail strike was blamed.

"And it wouldn't have happened if we had been on the job," striking shopmen said.

POMEROY, Aug. 19 -Local baseball fans are mourning for "Spot", a dog reported seriously ill from poisoning. Spot was a rabid baseball fan, and attended every game with his owner, Henry Pfarr. He always stationed himself near the catcher and made himself useful by chasing foul tips. It is claimed that he became so adept at the national pastime, that he would never touch a foul unless he heard the umpire call it foul.

ATHENS, Aug 19 Half a dozen road building projects are being held up in Athens county by the railroad strike. Several hundred men have been thrown out of work in all sections of the country and just now no one knows when the needed material can be secured.

MARTINS FERRY, Aug. 19 - The Reverend [illegible] A. Stanley has accepted a call to a church in Lyons, Ohio. He recently resigned as pastor of the First Christian Church here.

BUCYRUS, Aug 19 Fines and costs amounting to $330 have been paid by Jacob P. Menges, following his being found guilty by Justice Rummel, Galion, on cruelty charges. Menges is declared to have confined his 26 year old daughter Dora in a smoke house on his farm for a period of over two years.

ASHLAND, Aug. 19 -W. O. Renner, New Lexington, former assistant county superintendent in Perry-co and Lester J. DeFord, former principal in the Hollandsburg High school in Darke-co, are engaged respectively as principals of the schools at Savannah and Ruggles.

ELYRIA, Aug. 19 Louis Polchey was found guilty of having liquor illegally in his possession and was fined $500 by Mayor A. R. Jones. He served notice of appeal on the ground that he was absent when officers raided his place and that no search warrant was served on him.

"A Bone to Pick."

This phrase originated in a marriage custom of Sicily. The father of the bride hands the bridegroom a bone saying, "Pick this bone; you have undertaken a most difficult task." Apparently married life among the Sicilians did not always run smoothly!

—and HERE IS THAT

which you have always imagined—hoped and looked for—a service station, (the outgrowth of twelve years experience in the special machine and electrical field) where ACCURACY—EXPERT MECHANICS—CLEAN QUARTERS—COURTESY—and a FAIR PRICE for work well done, will win your friendship and enthusiasm.

—You cannot compare this service station with any other because there can be no comparison.

—Located on two well known streets, (allowing entrance and exit without danger) this service station offers the owner a clean—well lighted—commodious place, equipped with the finest machinery obtainable and manned by expert mechanics, (not merely repair men) who will give you an honest day's work and the finest workmanship for a fair margin of profit.

—YOU'VE HAD REPAIRS BEFORE—DOUBTLESS WILL NEED THEM AGAIN. THAT'S WHERE OUR REPRESENTATIVE WILL PROVE YOUR FRIEND. YOU HAVE NEVER ENJOYED SERVICE OR THIS KIND.

—WORK ON ALL MAKES OF CARS SOLICITED—IF WE DON'T FIX IT—IT COSTS YOU NOTHING.

EAGLES FORFEIT A GAME; MONDAY TO DECIDE PENNANT

Failing to put on the field a whole team and participate in a scheduled game Friday evening at Red Sea, the Eagles forfeited their game to the Red Men.

The Pow-wows gained another half game on the Knights of Pythias, while the Knights were idle.

The Fraternal League honors will probably be decided at the Knights of Pythias-Red Men game at Red Sea on Monday evening. Should the Knights take Monday's game from the Indians, the Pow-wows might as well throw up the sponge. The opinion of a majority of the Fraternal League fans is that the Pythians will win the pennant.

The Moose and Eagles postponed game will be played on the evening of K. of C. and Elks are scheduled, August 24. The Eagles and K. of C.'s from this week to the close of the season will forfeit their games to the teams they are scheduled with.

The proceeds of the Proctor Norman benefit game, which was staged between the Red Men and K. of P.'s a few days ago, will go toward paying Norman's doctor bill and a hundred dollars will be given to him. This accounts for all the money that was taken in at the game.

The Fraternal League Standing:

Clubs:	W.	L.	Pct.
K. of P.	11	2	.846
Red Men	11	3	.786
Elks	7	5	.583
Moose	6	6	.500
K. of C.	2	11	.154
Eagles	2	11	.154

ROSCOE M. E.'S IN CELLAR; PREBYS WIN GAME, 6 TO 4

The Roscoe M. E.'s went into the cellar of the Inter-Church League Friday evening when they were defeated by the Presbyterian nine at the fairground. The score was 6 to 4.

The game was fast and exciting and both teams played exceptionally good ball.

The Presbys are now in third position in the League.

The batteries were: Roscoe—Chaney and Huff: Presbys—Wolfe, H. Hall and Callahan.

Following is the league standing:

	W	L	Pct.
Coshocton M. E.	6	4	.600
Coshocton M. P.	6	5	.545
Presbyterians	5	6	.455
Roscoe M. E	5	7	.417

NELLIE WILL PLAY CONESVILLE SUN.

The Nellie baseball nine will make their first appearance on the Conesville diamond Sunday afternoon. They are to cross bats with the fast Franklin-tp boys.

Conesville went to Nellie last season and came home defeated. Conesville now plans revenge.

City Almost Has Monopoly.

About 90 per cent of the diamond-cutting establishments in the United States are located in New York.

MAYOR PERMITS

privision the mayor makes is that the beer be the real goods; no home or near beer stuff. Drug stores have been advised that they can go the limit selling ale, if it's cold.

The mayor positively prohibits the sale of moonshine and all adulterated beverages. It must be the genuine stuff or nothing. The city's motor-cycle police squad was turned into a bunch of nimble Paul Reveres, flying about town notifying the saloon men to get busy. Soon there was a horde of anxious barkeepers at city hall anxious to ascertain if the mayor was kidding or was he serious. He avowed he was most serious. So joyful are the hotel men that they have sworn to chase all the bootleggers out of the city. Unofficial reports this morning said beer was being sold.

Saloonmen are a bit cautious fearful prohibition sleuths will put an end to the mayor's popular scheme. The whole city is awaiting developments later in the day.

Moonshiner Admits Dodging Arrest On Manslaughter Charge

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 19.—Easy wealth gained via the worm of a moonshine still proved the undoing of Edward Gleason, 64, Dayton, Ky., who confessed after his arrest on liquor charges that he had been dodging arrest for ten years after escaping from the Fleminsburg, Ky., jail on the eve of being taken to the state penitentiary to serve a two to twenty year term for manslaughter.

A 30 gallon still and 13 gallons of whiskey were found in the house.

BOY MURDERER TAKES OWN LIFE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19. -Death came to David Steel, 17, youthful murderer, at the Mount Carmel hospital this morning, as a result of a self inflicted bullet wound in the abdomen. About an hour before he died, a charge of first degree murder was filed against him in juvenile court, following his confession that he murdered Mrs. Moses Hess, 74, his employer with a butcher knife, Thursday.

Alone with Mrs. Hess on a farm near this city young Steel said he brooded over his alleged mistreatment and killed his aged benefactress when he saw the knife lying on the kitchen table.

Realization of what he had done led to his shooting of himself, he declared.

Harry C. Hart, guardian of the estate of the minor heirs of Christian Hart, deceased, has filed his first and final account in probate court.

"Ice Saints."

In many parts of continental Europe the idea has prevailed since the Middle ages that the days dedicated to SS. Mamertus, Pancras and Servatius—May 11, 12 and 13—or, according to another version, to SS. Pancras, Servatius and Boniface—May 12, 13 and 14—generally bring destructive frosts. On account of this belief, which has been the subject of much scientific discussion, both the saints in question and their days in the calendar were popularly known as the "ice saints."
